League of legends wild rift champions

December 9, 2020 update: Wild Rift Regional Beta is now in parts of Asia and Europe. The official beta date for Europe is December 10, but many users report that they can install and release it now. Try to try the link below! Months after rumours of a League of Legends mobile game emerged, Riot games made it official during a ten-year event. However, League of Legends: Wild Reed is an entirely new game, not just a mobile port of the most popular game in the world. So, what is this new mobile MOBA? Keep reading about everything you need to know about League of Legends: Wild Rick! Pre-registration for Wild RipWhat is League of Legends: Wild Rip? League of Legends: Wild Reed is a new mobile take on the world's most popular game, League of Legends. Riot Games has fully restored the Called Rift (now called wild rift) for mobile devices, and reworked many of the game's most popular champions and skins. Gameplay is still a 5v5 MOBA action, but with a unique mobile spin. The map is slightly smaller, the capabilities are thrown with a double control stick, and the matching time is reduced to 15 minutes for mobile devices. This is also riot games' first trip to the mobile space, but given the company's links to mobile gaming Tencent Gaming, expect a level of polish greater than your competitors on mobile platforms. How much is it? Like the game on which it is based, Wild Rift will be completely free to play, with in-app purchases for fur and other cosmetic content. Like PC League of Legends, all champions can only be unlocked through gameplay or purchased directly to speed things up. Riot is committed to making the game even more free to play friendly than LoL with more championship giveaways as you pick up. Blue moschit serves as a free currency (similar to the blue essence of the computer version) and can be used to unlock more champions. The paid currency, called Wild Cores, is used for furs and other cosmetic products. For now, skins are based on existing LoL skins, but future skins can be original for the mobile version. There are also emojis, emblems and trinkets, which are a new kind of 3D emoji that are thrown to the ground. What is League of Legends: Wild Reed's release date? Although no official wild rift release date has been announced, regional beta is now available in many parts of the world. After limited alpha players in Europe, Vietnam, Oceania, Taiwan, Turkey, Russia, CIS, Middle East and North Africa can now play. There is currently no regional beta date for North America, but you can expect it to start some time in early 2021. You can sign up in advance now on the Google Play Store or on the official website to learn more. How do you play the wild reef? Wild Rift has the same capability system as the LoL PC, but with mobile control layout. On many other mobile MOBA titles, this means a dual stick control scheme, with the left stick to move your character and the right stick to guide your abilities. Many champions is adjusted to make it easier to control on touch screens. For example, ash's ultimate enchanted Crystal Arrow can be directed rather than flying in a straight line. Long-range skill shots also take the camera away to make it easier for enemies to land off-screen. All Point and Click capabilities have been converted into skillshots to better suit the new control scheme. These changes make the game more accessible to mobile and console players, but still allow for a high skill cap for competitive play. Automatic attacks and certain skills also use a new automatic targeting system for both creep and champions. There are two additional automatic attack buttons to target towers or crawl to give you better control. Farming is also much easier with a new color indicator for when you can hit last. The elements are also slightly redesigned, although they usually still perform the same role as PC LoL. The main exception to this is the active elements that now work like a omagg of boots. Each player can purchase only one charming one, so make sure you choose wisely between Zhonyas stasis, QSS, Redemption heals, and so on! Jungle and maintenance items have also been removed. Smite already has passive capabilities built in, and gold generation for supports is already accounted for in other ways. However, Warding and sweeping Wards remains an important part of card control. Overall, Wild Ripta gameplay is also accelerated to accommodate a mobile game. Instead of the 25-50-minute matches in lol PC, Wild Rift will have 15-18 minute matches. ARAM-style game modes may reduce this further, although so far only the Wild Rift map has been previewed. What does the Wild Rip map look like? The Wild Rift map is similar to the PC LoL map, with several very significant changes. The biggest change is that the map is mirrored, so your base is always in the lower left corner. The upper and lower bands have been renamed solo and duo bands to suit. This change ensures that your fingers never cover important parts of the screen, regardless of which team you are. Inhibs are removed and their function is baked in the towers that are used to protect them. Nexus towers have also disappeared, with nexus itself fighting against the attackers. The layout of the jungle is also softened and streamlined for faster play. Drake has been changed to have a more active impact. For example, ocean drake now gives the damage a vampire instead of passive regeneration. When the senior dragon is defeated towards the end of the game, it gives three times the effect until it is draped in front of it. What champions are available at launch? Currently, 50 champions are available in wild beta Among them are the most classic champions such as Annie, Malfit and Uz, as well as later editions such as Seraphin, Yasuo and Camille. Each champion has been completely renovated and restored scratches, so not all current skins will be available at startup. It should be noted that there are no intentions to bring a 150+ LoL list to the Wild Rip. Champs, which best meets the new control scheme, will be adapted in the first place, and in the future there may even be only more mobile champions released. Cross-game with League of Legends PC is also out of the question as they are completely separate games. Not even champions or other unlock will transfer from your LoL pc to wild rift account. However, some events will switch between the two games and cross-play between mobile and consoles may be offered in the future. What phones are compatible with Wild Rift? Riot Games is committed to making its keystone mobile title play on a wide variety of devices. For Android, this means devices roughly equivalent to a Samsung A7, or devices with the following specifications or higher: 1GB RAM, Qualcomm Snapdragon 410 processor, Adreno 306 GPU. On iOS, it needs to run on something newer than the iPhone 5s. While in beta, developers are focused on reducing package loss, draining battery and using data. More powerful phones will have full 60fps support, but the goal is to reduce the band as much as possible so everyone can play. Will progress and champions of the League PC transfer in the Wild Rift?No. Although you can link the two accounts, progress in both games is separate. However, veteran League of Legends players can win some special prizes for the years spent in the game. There are still details about what these awards are. Will there be a scene for Wild Rip? There are no specific plans for the LSD-like Wild Rift pro scene, but it's definitely on Riot's radar. For now, the focus is on proper gameplay, but there will be a ranking mode for players above level 10. Stay tuned for more information about this as the game is closer to release. Can I play Wild Rift on a computer emulator? Yes, you can play wild Reed on a computer using an emulator. However, Riot Games has not decided how to approach the problem. For now, you will not be banned (unless you cheat), but in the future the company may change its policy. That said, playing on a PC will not give you much advantage. Due to the two-stick control scheme, a mouse and keyboard can actually be a hindrance. This is for all you need to For the first mobile game of Riot Games! Are you excited to jump on Wild Reed?
